

American Center for Credit Education

1,843,335 Financial Education Programs distributed

In 2023 our financial education programs were used by credit counseling agencies, housing counseling agencies, the military, agencies working with the homeless, agencies working with at-risk individuals, and agencies that are approved by the US Trustees for credit counseling and debtor education.

ACCE Support

Money in Motion Student Comments

I was recently widowed and find this information quite helpful; I only wish my husband and I would have been able to complete this together. I found helpful tips and learned some things I was not aware of.

I think middle schools and high schools should make this course a requirement along with their regular curriculum

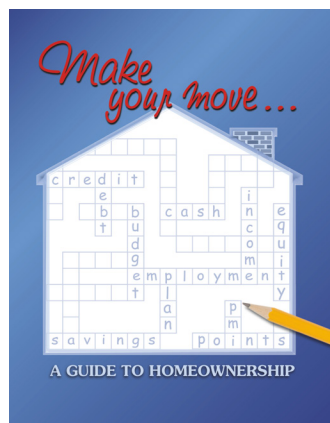

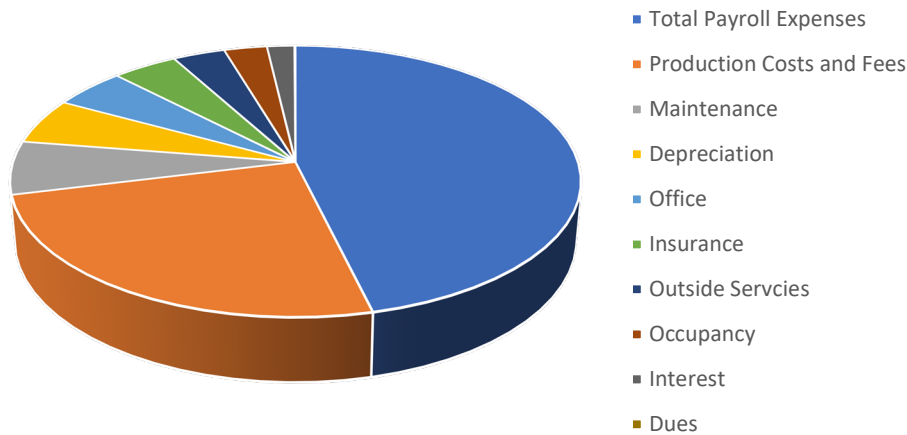

I wish I knew about this before I got in financial debt when I first started getting credit cards over 20 years ago.

This course was awesome, was not excited to take the course, but am so glad I did. Good advice from chapter 1 thru chapter 8. It was worth every minute I spent taking the course.

American Center for Credit Education

According to a 2022 survey by Consumer Affairs, the number one financial regret across all generations from baby boomer to millennials, is not becoming financially literate when they were young. Financial education is a key part of being able to manage your money and make sound financial decisions.

ACCE Expenses

Make Your Move...A Guide to Homeownership Student Comments.

This course is jam packed with information. This course has very valuable information.

This course helped me understand the process of buying a home. It detailed and explained important information in terms that were easy to understand. I highly recommend this course to anyone that is considering buying, selling, renting, and refinancing a home.

This was a great course and super helpful for the audio reading to stay on track.

Amazing program. So helpful. I have been researching for the past 6 months and this covered everything and more. Thank you.

I've already looked at a house with an agent and felt like I knew nothing about the process or what I would be getting into. This program helped me understand terminology as well as the processes I would be entering when buying a home, and I feel a lot more confident about buying a home.